

Office of the Vice President for Research

Export Control Compliance Program

Export control laws are federal regulations that govern how certain information, technologies, and commodities can be transmitted overseas or to a foreign national on U.S. soil. The scope of the regulations is broad: they cover exports in virtually all fields of science, engineering, and technology and apply to research activities regardless of the source of funding. The Office of the Vice President for Research (OVPR), Research Compliance Services can help you understand these regulations and make sure you remain in compliance while conducting your research.

Staff from Research Compliance Services is here to help with your export control concerns, including questions relating to:

- Export Administration Regulations (EAR)
- International Traffic in Arms Regulations (ITAR)
- Office of Foreign Assets Control (OFAC) Sanctions
- Fundamental Research Exclusion
- International shipping and travel
- Export control related compliance training
